

ANTH 4701 Internship in Forensic Anthropology

May 3-17, 2014  Miami, Florida

This is a practical, hands-on course in forensic anthropology utilizing forensic skeletal remains from the Miami-Dade County Medical Examiner Department. It will provide a multi-disciplinary approach to the field of forensic anthropology. The course is two weeks long and will include the examination and identification of human remains, writing forensic anthropology reports, learning maceration techniques of bodies in various stages of decomposition, observing autopsies, forensic odontology/bitemark lectures and analyses, toxicology and DNA analyses, forensic photography workshop, and discussions about Death Investigation with the case investigators.

Application deadline: January 27, 2014

For additional information contact Dr. Tanya Peckmann
Department of Anthropology  Saint Mary's University
tanya.peckmann@smu.ca 902-496-8719